The meeting was full of spirited wrangles, practically nothing was accomplished.

Mr. Ernest H. Wells was present in the interest of the Allen family, and he was asked to take the floor and make a statement. He said that Mrs. Allen had retained him to look after the interest of Mr. Allen before the committee, Mr. Wells said he had done everything possible to locate Mr. Allen, and that nothing whatever could be learned as to his whereabouts. He stated further that he wished to dispel the idea, which has prevailed in certain quarters to the effect that Mrs. Allen was aware of the whereabouts of her husband. He said positively that he always dealt frankly with his clients, and that he had inliked with Mrs. Allen, who, when questioned, stated that she had not heard for or seen Superintendent Allen since he disspeared, and that she was ignorant of his whereabouts.

Mr. W. B. Bradley asked that the investigation be postponed for a reasonable time, so that if possible Mr. Allen could be located and appear before the committee and make an explanation of the various bills. Mr. Bradley's motion was lost.

One of the most practical and interesting agreesses heard on the subject of the South and the advisability of making changes in contracts and the classification of cotton.

No conclusion was reached, however, and because of the absence of the representatives of the New Orleans Cction Exchange, who were to have been present, the committee recommended that another committee be appointed to take up the matter during the year. The report was adopted, and the present committee was continued, Condemns the Commission.

The cotton referred to was on a rate case on Southern goods to the Orient, in which suit was brought by New York exporters against Southern railroads to collect the difference between 85 cents, the rate from New England, and $1.25, the rate from the South.

The commission decided in favor of the railroads.

The Forest of Arden, invaded by ugly showers and overhung by dark clouds proved so unattractive yesterday that Orlando, Rosalind, the banished Duke, Oliver, old Adam, Touchstone, and even the melancholy Jacques, whose fancles run neither to rain or sunshine, forsook the green sward and the rustling trees and betook themselves a triffe damp to the dry seclusion of a chapel which the ever kind hand of fate had built nearby.

It's a far cry from the sunshine of the woods to the drikness of a prayer hall, from grass and flowers to boards and benches, but love and life stop neither for rain or sunshine, and romance will be suppressed neither by gloom nor adversity.

So it was that the followers of the duke sang merrily; the melancholy Jaques recited his tales of woe, and Orlando and Rosalind Leathed tales of love despite unpropitious and unartistic surrounding.
